Drägersafety

Negotiate narrow time-frames safely.

Safety is the most important aspect on board. However, with all the hectic activities of short, expensive lay days, there is enough to think about. This is why it is good if we can have already prepared things for you: for every one of your portable gas detection devices that require maintenance, a corresponding replacement device is waiting for you in your next port of call. The devices belong to your shipping company or ship. We allot your stock and automatically secure the demand from your pool.

You no longer need to worry about searching for your local contact partner, or miss a maintenance appointment. This saves costs and simplifies your internal process flows. You simply give the "old device" to your agent, or post it to us.

There is no risk of your departure being delayed due to a missing certificate. With every device maintained by the Dräger Marine Service Center, you not only get the feeling of safety, but also the necessary inspection reports and certificates. This allows you to concentrate on the more pleasant aspects of seafaring.
